Horizon Europe is the EU's key funding programme for research and innovation with a budget of €95.5 billion. It will run from 2021 to 2027. The first calls for proposals for collaborative research action were launched in June.

The HORIZON EUROPE CALLS INFO DAY JAPAN virtual event for research actors and interested parties from across the European Research Area and Japan will be held on 26th July 2021.

Individual calls will be introduced by policy officers along with a brief description of best practices from among the previous Horizon 2020 projects partnering with Japan.

The screenshot shows a Zoom meeting interface. At the top, there are participant thumbnails for Bernard Chen..., Maria Georgia..., Nathan Clark, and Mikel Emaldi. Below the thumbnails is a presentation slide from the European Commission. The slide is titled "Global approach to research & innovation" and "Europe's strategy for international cooperation in a changing world". It features a logo for "BeArchaeo" and a list of bullet points:

- Research and Innovation Staff Exchange
- archaeologists from both Europe and Japan, interlinked archaeometry
- journalists, video makers, web masters and IT experts
- received funding from the European Commission; well-balanced cooperation: >>> doctoral candidates, postdocs, but also professors and senior researchers were active participants

Below the slide, there is a video feed of Nienke Buisman speaking. A caption below the video reads: "July-26th -2021 -- Nienke BUISMAN European Commission, DG Research and Innovation".
